CT General Statue 19a-36c - Not later than October 1, 2005, each food service establishment in the state shall acquire a sign that describes how to recognize the signs of choking and that addresses appropriate procedures to be taken if a patron of a food service establishment is choking. Such sign shall be conspicuously displayed in such food service establishment within an area where food operators and any other employee of a food service establishment can readily view such sign and such food operators and employees of such food service establishment shall become familiar with the contents of such sign. Nothing in this section shall be construed to apply to any catering food service establishment or any itinerant food vending establishment.

Poster original created by the Illinois Department of Public Health and was rebranded with CEHA logo with their written permission.